

INTEGRITY IN PUBLIC LIFE

PUBLICATION SCHEME

1. Guide to Information and the Standards Commission's publication scheme

- 1.1 The Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 requires Scottish public authorities to produce and maintain a publication scheme. Authorities have a legal obligation to:
- publish the classes of information that they make available routinely; and
 - tell the public how to access the information and whether information is available free of charge or if a payment is due what charges will be applied.
- 1.2 The Standards Commission adopted the Model Publication Scheme 2015, produced by the Scottish Information Commissioner. The Standards Commission's Scheme received approval from the Scottish Information Commissioner on 10 July 2015.
- 1.3 Information about the Model Publication scheme can be found on the Scottish Information Commissioner's website at www.itspublicknowledge.info/PublicationSchemeGuidance.
- 1.4 The purpose of this Guide to Information is to:
- allow you to see what classes of information about the Standards Commission and its work is available (and what is not), and in what format;
 - explain how to find the information easily;
 - provide contact details for enquiries and for help to access the information;
 - explain how to request the information that has not been published; and
 - state what charges may be applied for the provision of paper copies of documents.

2. Availability and formats

- 2.1 The information the Standards Commission publishes under the Model Publication Scheme is available on its website www.standardscommissionscotland.org.uk. The Standards Commission can offer alternative arrangements, on request, for those who are unable or unwilling to access the information from the website. For example, arrangements can be made for the information to be sent as a paper copy by post. There may, however, be a charge for this (see Section 5 below).

3. Exempt information

- 3.1 The Standards Commission holds information which falls within the classes of information detailed below. Information in any document that is exempt under Freedom of Information legislation (for example, if it is sensitive personal data), may be removed or blanked out (redact) before publication. An explanation will be provided if any such action has been taken.

4. Copyright and re-use

- 4.1 Where the Standards Commission holds the copyright in any of its published information, the information may be copied or reproduced without formal permission, provided that:
- it is copied or reproduced accurately;
 - it is not used in a misleading context; and
 - the source of the material is identified.
- 4.2 The Standards Commission will make it clear if it does not hold the copyright for any information it publishes.

5. Charges

- 5.1 This section outlines the circumstances in which the Standards Commission might apply a charge for its publications.
- 5.2 There is no charge to view the information displayed on our website or at the Standards Commission's office. Anyone wishing to view information at the Standards Commission's office must make an advance appointment to do so.
- 5.3 The Standards Commission may charge for any costs incurred in providing information, such as for postage and / or photocopying. The charge for the supply of information will be no more than the actual cost of producing and sending copies of the information. The Standards Commission will always advise of the charge to be applied before the information is supplied.
- 5.4 This charging schedule does not apply to commercial publications (see Class 8 below). Any such items are offered for sale through retail outlets such as book shops, academic journal websites or museum shops and their price reflects the 'market value', which may include the associated production costs.
